HEADLINE NEWS

- Lombok International Airport - Due to Open in October 2011

Lombok International Airport (or Bandara Internasional Lombok) is a new airport under construction on the island of Lombok. Currently, Lombok is serviced by Selaparang Airport. The completion of the airport project and necessary complementary infrastructure such as a highway connecting to the city of Mataram has delayed inauguration of the new airport several times. It is suggested that the airport will be fully operational on 1 October 2011.

- Ngurah Rai International Airport - Road Closure Leading to Bali's Airport until March 2012

Access to Bali's Ngurah Rai International Airport has been altered during the course of the ongoing expansion of the airport's international terminal. The road, which connects the airport's entrance to Kuta, has been closed effective 10 September 2011 and will not extend beyond March 2012.

The closure will not affect access for those travelling from Nusa Dua, Sanur or Denpasar. Those travelling from Kuta and South Kuta will, however, need to divert before rejoining the main airport access road.

Visitors staying in South Kuta and Tuban are advised to add additional time to their travel itineraries for transfers between the hotel and the airport.

The renovations of the airport are intended to increase the annual carrying capacity of the airport from 8 million to 25 million and are targeted to be completed by 2013.
